

FIRST COLOR INSIDE THE GREENHOUSES

The greenhouses are buzzing as we gear up for the heart of spring. Our team is planting the first rounds of signature hanging baskets and floor containers, and the first bright blooms of the season are starting to appear. While these still need a little time before they're ready to go home with you, now is the perfect time to start preparing your own spaces for spring color.

Refresh your containers

Give last year's pots and planters a quick refresh. Dump old soil, rinse them out, and check that drainage holes are clear so they're ready for new plants.

Plan your planting spots

Take note of sun and shade around your porch or patio. Knowing where the light hits now will help you choose the best spot for hanging baskets and containers later.

Stock up on essentials

Make sure you have fresh potting mix, plant food, and hooks or stands ready. Having supplies on hand means you can plant as soon as the blooms are ready.

The season is blooming and we can't wait to grow with you!

WHERE THE CANOYER DIFFERENCE GROWS

When you shop at Canoyer, keep an eye out for the bright purple pots and clean white pots with our logo. Those pots mean one thing: the plant inside is Canoyer grown. Our team saw that plant through every step of the process—from selecting the soil to giving it the care it needs to thrive.

That hands-on approach is the Canoyer difference. Our growers nurture these plants from day one until they're ready to head home with you, ensuring they're strong, healthy, and ready for Iowa gardens. As you shop this spring, look for our branded pots—your sign that the plant was grown by our team, for Iowa.
