VOL. 10: GREEN IS OUR THING

A TASE OF GREEN BEFORE SPRING SETTLES

This weekend's warm spell might have you dreaming of lush greenery and spring blooms, but don't let it trick you. In Iowa, a few sunny days don't mean the season has fully arrived—soil is still warming, and chilly nights can still surprise you. Think of this as a sneak peek of spring, not the green light to plant everything.

Prep now, plant later

Use the warm stretch to get your garden ready. Clean up beds, trim back leftover growth, and refresh containers with soil. A little prep now sets the stage for vibrant greenery when the season truly arrives.

Ease into the season

If you're eager to add some green, start small. Gradually introducing plants to outdoor conditions helps avoid stress and setbacks, keeping your space healthy and thriving.

Protect what you bring home

Many plants aren't ready for full-time outdoor life just yet. Keep an eye on nighttime temps and be ready to cover or move things indoors. A little caution now keeps your green looking great later.

Enjoy Iowa's early preview to the very green planting season ahead!

HAPPY ST. PATRICK'S DAY!

It may not be all that green outside just yet, but inside is a different story. If you're ready to shake off winter, houseplants are an easy way to bring that fresh, lively feel back into your space. From bold foliage to subtle textures, a little green goes a long way this time of year.

And there's more on the way. We've got a fresh wave of houseplants arriving soon, grown with care and ready to brighten your home. Whether you're adding your first plant or expanding your collection, it's the perfect time to lean into green and get a head start on the season ahead.
